

Alpha Sigma Nu Sponsors Academic Tutoring Service

Because of the need of deficient students to improve their studies, Loyola recently established for the first time on campus a student tutoring service. This co-curricular activity, under the auspices of Alpha Sigma Nu, is designed to assist freshmen and sophomores with subjects in which they are honestly deficient. The stress will be on methods and difficulty with teachers.

The tutors consist of juniors and seniors who have a minimum 3.0 Q.P.A. and who have been chosen by ASN by invitation only. The tutor and pupil meet at times convenient for both. Xavier Lounge will be open exclusively for this purpose. For this service there is no charge.

Emphasis is placed on the application being made only by the student. A teacher may only suggest a student to do so. The responsibility for the student to help himself rests on his own choice.

Applications can be made at ASN's office on Wednesday and Friday from 11 to 12 o'clock. Filing will not start til November 20. A student will be assigned a tutor. He may not choose his own.

The student will meet for a total of two hours a week for three weeks which can be extended by his professor. This service will not be active during the two weeks before final exams.

The office for the tutors is tentatively located in the Management Club's office. Students are to consider that this is not a homework or a cram course; but an honest effort to understand their subject matter and to reorganize their methods of study.

Frosh Elections

Petitioning for the Freshman Elections began on Monday November 11 and will end on November 22. All rules and required forms can be obtained at the Dean of Men's office.

Conducting the entire campaign will be the Elections Committee of the Student Council under Chairman Ken Dawson. The Committee has arranged for candidate interviews on Nov. 25-27. This will give the candidates time over the Thanksgiving Holidays to plan their strategy, put up their posters, and organize their political machines.

The campaign will continue from November 28 until December 13, and should be highlighted by a debate sponsored by the Elections Committee which will be scheduled at a later date. This debate will enable the members of the class to learn of the candidates' aims and opinions. The voting time will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on December 13 in the lobby of the Student Union Building.

Land, Library Building Objects Of Expansion

Very Reverend Vincent F. Beatty, S.J., President of Loyola College has announced the formation of a special committee of business and industrial leaders to conduct a new development project, which will be known as the Loyola Land and Library Program. The immediate goal of the group will be the raising of $1,900,000 to be used for the acquisition of additional acreage and the erection of a much needed Library building.

Honorary chairman of the campaign is the Most Reverend Lawrence J. Shehan, Archbishop of Baltimore. His assistants are: Thomas B. Butler, Henry P. Irr, Charles P. Crane, and Beverly H. Mercer.

Fr. Beatty pointed out the many changes in the educational scene since moving to Evergreen in 1921. Father Beatty said, "In 1929 our campus at Evergreen was adequate for the Loyola of that day. Now it is crowded with twelve buildings and a greatly cramped athletic area that must serve several purposes.

Parking space--a modern necessity at any institution--is so curtailed that only a limited number of the day school seniors can be accommodated. To correct these conditions, and to provide space for future growth, additional land is now a prime necessity."

Father Beatty added that, "We are most fortunate to have received cooperation from the President and the Trustees of the Johns Hopkins University. Recognizing our acute land problem, they have just authorized the sale to us of ten acres from the bordering John Work Garrett estate. We can now move ahead with our continuing Development program as this new land will go into immediate use via a relocation of facilities that will provide the best central location for the new library building."

The ten acres of the Evergreen estate are located at the eastern portion of the property and will connect with the present Loyola campus by an 80-foot wide corridor. This corridor is directly in back of and to the north of the Andrew White Center.

Based on the estimates of two independent appraisers, the price for the land to be sold was set at $167,850 plus certain costs for providing new residences for persons now living on the property.

In discussing the new library, Father Beatty commented that the Jenkins Library Building, which went into use in 1929, is now inadequate for the current and growing enrollment in the day, evening, and graduate schools. After comprehensive study, the Board of Trustees has approved a new Library building as Loyola's most pressing need. The present library space will than be converted into much needed classrooms. Over the years the library has grown from 19,000 to 60,000 volumes and student traffic has increased propor-

Gorman Lecture On Diem Regime

The Gorman Lecture Series, in conjunction with the International Relations Club of Loyola College, is happy to announce the appearance of Bernard B. Fall. Professor Fall will speak on the topic: "The Diem Regime and Its Aftermath". This lecture will take place on Wednesday, November 20, 1963, at 7:30 p.m. in Ruzicka Hall on the Evergreen campus. It is open to the public without charge.

Author Fall

Professor Fall is the author of The Viet Minh Regime, Street Without Joy: Indochina at War 1946-54, Insurgency in Indochina 1946-1963, and the recently published Two Vietnams: Background of Conflict. His Dien Bien Phu: End of an Empire is scheduled for publication in 1964. Professor Fall has written more than 200 magazine articles, including ones for Foreign Affairs and The New Republic magazines. He is also a correspondent for several newspapers, including The Washington Post.

Professor Fall

Professor Fall is presently Professor of International Relations at Howard University. He was previously an Assistant Professor at American University and an Instructor at Cornell University. Professor Fall received both his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Syracuse University. He has also studied at the University of Paris, University of Munich, American University and Johns Hopkins University. In addition to his teaching duties and writing activities, Professor Fall is a Consultant to the United States Government for Southeast Asian Affairs and Guerilla Warfare.

Professor Fall, a native of Vienna, Austria, is married and has four children. He currently resides in Alexandria, Virginia.

Editorials

Evergreen Annual

One of the highest honors and one of the most burdensome of tasks that can be assigned to any senior is the editorship of his College Annual. This job is an excellent test of his time, his patience, and his organizational abilities. Jimmy Burns, class of '63, has faced this challenge and has met it.

The 1963 Evergreen Annual is, in our estimation, the finest yearbook Loyola students have ever produced. It is a real tribute to the efforts of those who produced it. The book shows marked improvement over the publications of past years in its photography, its general composition, and in its date of publication.

The book is available to anyone unfortunate enough not to be a subscriber for his persual in the yearbook office. It would be very much worth his while to come down and look at it. Then, he could see just how much progress the Annual Staff has made in the past year.

If you haven't seen last year's book, come down to the office and ask to see it. No matter what class you are in, it might stir you to do some good for your own book. It will convince you that Loyola students are capable of a superior publication. Having done this, begin to support those whom you think will be responsible for your year's book. It's never too early. What you do now might be very rewarding to you in terms of memories some years hence.

By and For the Students

At the halfway mark of this semester, this newspaper once again feels the urgent need to address the students on the subject of student participation in extracurricular activities. The arguments of certain students that their concern for studies has prevented them from active participation in the life of the College are subject to reconsideration in the light of the recent deficiency reports. Should a student find that his scholastic achievements to date are consistent with his goals in that he is doing reasonably well, he should find it profitable to expand his sphere of collegiate participation to include at least one, or perhaps more, campus activities.

The opinion expressed by many activity heads is that far too many students are contented with sarcastic criticism in the cafeteria rather than constructive advice and participation in the extracurricular program of the school. There is, perhaps, a valid basis for these criticisms, but if we may suggest a reason for any inadequacies which may exist it is that the responsibility for successful activities rests upon a minority of interested students. Thus a more active student body will solve both the problem of an insufficient number of interested individuals and the failure of certain activities to achieve their ultimate goals as stated in their constitutions.

IRC Sends Two To African Talks

This weekend Loyola College will send two delegates to the University of Maryland for the third annual Institute on International Programming: Emphasis Africa. Loyola's delegates will be IRC members Dan Whalen and Ray Ackerman.

Films

The Institute will feature student participation. There will be a film festival of current African films, representatives from 15 African service organizations, exhibits of selected materials on international programming and publishers' exhibits.

Most important, the Institute will provide a sounding board for divergent ideas expressed by Congressional, United Nations, and African leaders; and student delegates will have the opportunity to confront and challenge these leaders.

Speakers

Considering the proposed agenda and the excellent speakers who will be present, this year's Institute promises to be very instructive. It is hoped that student awareness of the complex forces and ideas which are shaping the future of Africa and the world will be increased.

Throughout the weekend there will be various seminars which will be conducted by the guest speakers. Several social events have also been planned including a dance and a banquet. The entire weekend should be a very successful affair.

Young GOP's Hold Election

On Wednesday, November 6, the newly formed Loyola Young Republican Club held its first official meeting. Under the auspices of its moderator, Miss Nevin, the nineteen members present elected their officers, juniors Dennis Keating and Bill Scholtes as President and Vice-president respectively. Treasurer, Corresponding Secretary, and Recording Secretary were swept by sophomores Jim Griffin, Pete Marcher, and Jerry Robinson.

Non-Aggressive

The purpose of the club is the political education of Loyola students concerning the Republican ideals. The club does not intend to engage in any battles of polemics with any one person or organization on campus. Nor does the club tend to lend its support to any political partisan group. The first semester's agenda will consist primarily of guest lecturers. All political lectures sponsored by the club will be opened to everyone on campus regardless of political beliefs.

Unsettled Matters

Deciding to meet at least six times a year, the club found itself under strict school regulations. This factor had a great deal to do with the contents of the constitution, particularly the by-laws which fell into disfavor with Miss

THE SPECTRUM

by Dennis Keating

Gone are the Ngo's, the dawn of the new day is at hand. Thus, the reaction of the crowds in Saigon upon the downfall of the regime of the late brothers, Ngo Dinh Diem and Ngo Dinh Nhu. Unfortunately, this dramatic shift of power in South Viet Nam does not necessarily herald this better day for a long-suffering people.

Diem's Role

That the Ngo regime, concerned as it was in its latter years primarily with the continued possession of power to the detriment of the successful prosecution of the war against the Viet Cong, finally fell was a distinct blessing of fate for the United States and its beleaguered Asian policy, whether masterminded by the CIA or otherwise. Of course Diem cannot be praised enough for his magnificent role in stabilizing South Viet Nam in 1955, following the Armistice and subsequent partition of Indochina. However, in its later stages his regime was assuming more and more of the characteristics of the Kuomintang. That he could have lead his country to ultimate victory was rapidly becoming extremely problematical.

Look Ahead

For those who would pause to consider the future course of South Viet Nam, it would seem to this observer very profitable for them, to examine the situation in South Korea. There, too, a corrupt regime led by a patriotic "father" was overthrown by the military, with the support of widespread civilian opinion. And then? The ruling junta professed the need for a return to "Democracy" as soon as possible. In reality, this has yet to be seen as practicable. Today, General Pak has been "elected" President of a country that is still foundering in a desperate economic and political crisis, whose end is not in sight.

Candidates

It would not be surprising at all to see the emergence of another Pak in the Republic of South Viet Nam. The Vietnamese Pak? Major General Duong Van Minh (Big Minh) and Brigadier General Ton That Dinh are leading candidates, as seen from this quarter. The troubled land of South Viet Nam has many a day facing it before the belated arrival of the dawn of a true "new day." And meanwhile, the war goes on.

Professor Fall

Next Wednesday evening, Professor Bernard Fall, a distinguished writer and an authority of longstanding on Indochina, will lecture on the "Diem Regime and its Aftermath." Presented by the Gorman Lecture Series in conjunction with the IRC, this lecture will be presented in Ruzicka Hall at 7:30 pm. Those interested in South Viet Nam and Southeast Asia would do well to attend.

IRC Conference Hears Dr. Jenkins

The annual conference of the Middle Atlantic Region of the Association of International Relations Clubs was held this year from November 8-10 at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore, Maryland. Loyola College was represented by three sophomores, Bob Diegelman, Jim Griffin and Jerry Robinson and one freshman, Bill Gordon. The topic for this year's conference was "Race Relations, A World Problem" with particular emphasis on the United States and the possibilities of an orderly process for total integration.

The conference opened Friday evening with a keynote address delivered by Doctor Martin D. Jenkins, the president of Morgan State College. In his address, Doctor Jenkins struck out at the passivity of American college students toward the problems of integration and urged more college students to speak out and express their opinions on the subject. Doctor Jenkins' plea was truly answered on the second day of the conference when the conference delegates engaged in five and a half hours of round table discussions on topics ranging from the effect of internal strife in the United States on world opinion to the problem of how we as college students of today and civic leaders of tomorrow can help solve this problem of integration.

Saturday, the second day of the conference was also marked with the election of Gerald Sumida, a native Hawaiian and present student of Princeton University, to the office of president of the Middle Atlantic Region of the Association of International Relations Clubs. The elections were then followed by a banquet and an address by Professor Charles Woodward Manning, Professor of International Relations at the London School of Economics, a native South African who presented a truly intelligent justification of the apartheid presently existing in the Republic of South Africa. The conference then climaxed Saturday evening with a dance in the Embassy Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel and was officially closed Sunday morning with a general business meeting and closing ceremonies.

tionately. The imagination and ingenuity that have permitted this faculty to absorb and keep pace with such growth have reached a natural end.

Father Beatty also commented on his gratitude to the business and civic leaders making up the committee which is undertaking the raising of the funds needed.

The campaign began with a dinner meeting of the committee on Monday, November 4, at the Maryland Club. The organizational activity began this past June at which time the Development Office moved to the campus from its previous downtown location.

Thomas J. Finucan, Director of Development, will aid the committee and coordinate activities.

the Watchdog?!

Well, here we are again with the Greyhound's answer to Mr. Peep's diary. Rumors on campus reveal that Father Scanlan will be taking a leave of absence shortly. He has been contracted to do some research for the C & P Telephone Company.

Hot Tip: The "Watchdog" advises all students who are currently holding U.S. Bonds to sell. Reason: Harry Quinn has gotten a notice for an Army physical.

We hear that Father Davish will be introducing his new textbook for use next semester. It's called, Saints Who Have Known Me.

Word has reached the Dog that Leo Jubb has just organized the Loyola chapter of the Harry Rebstock fan club.

Tom Mantik tells us that the Catholic Church has just approved a new medicinal contraceptive. It's called sulfa-denial.

The Dog is wondering what happened to last year's yearbook.

Rumor has it that it will be incorporated into the 1964 yearbook. However, we are interested in whether or not our $1.00 deposit is transferable.

We would like to mention that the freshmen elections will take place on Friday the 13th of December. The elections committee must have a morbid sense of humor.

In connection with this, we would like to remind Willy Hoffman that he cannot run for president of the freshman class.

We would like to mention a good movie that we saw last week. It was about a milk farm. It was called the Dairy of Anne Frank.

Calvin Kirby denies that he plans to nail 95 theses to the Chapel door.

Finally, we would like to thank Father Scanlan without whose class, this column could not have been written.

Hound Swimmers Open Against St. Peter's Tonight

St. Peter's College of New Jersey, still smarting from an embarrassing 88 to 22 defeat dealt them by the Hounds last year, will help the M-D champion Loyola natators open their 1963-64 season tonight, 7:30 PM at Evergreen. The Peacocks have never offered a serious threat to the Hounds, bowing to Loyola in the past five meetings. Tonight's encounter will provide Coach Bill Klarner an opportunity to test new members in intercollegiate competition.

Time To Test New Talent

In addition to the more experienced members of the team, such as freestylers Al Kubeluis and Tom Jeffers, backstroker Joe Doyle, divers Skip Seward and Paul Palmer, and breaststroker Charles Krapp, Loyola will test such new prospects as butterflyers Bryan Berger and John Kelly, breaststrokers Bill Bullough, Ned Moritz, George St. Ours, and Mike Behles, and freestylers Rich Morgan, Murray Stephens, Joe Colly, Pat Offut, Mike Sauer, and Bill Dubey. Backstroker and freestyler Harry Devlin and the long-distance man, Joe Metz, will not see action tonight because of injuries.

Klarner's Predictions

Coach Bill Klarner says, "This year, a lot of the team's success will depend on how our new men progress in their events. It is up to these men to supply the depth we need for a winning season and the Mason-Dixon championships. After our first two meets at home we travel away to resume our annual rivalry with two tough teams, Washington and Lee and VMI. Our men will have to pull out all the stops for these meets."

Last year's team had their winningest season in history. An amazing 7 of 11 pool records were smashed, a fine achievement.

B-Ball Set

Pre-season drills indicate that the Hound hardcourtters will again feature a fast squad but will have more height than the fine team of one year ago.

Adequate Reserves

Billy Carew and Alex Cummings, team co-captains and only senior returnees, complement veterans Billy Morris, Marty Maher, and Mike McCarthy, all juniors readying for their third season on the Loyola varsity. Sophomores Charlie Lawrence, Larry Stevenson, and Bob Lister have progressed remarkably and these three are definitely counted on to help the varsity. Tommy Brown, another steady frosh performer of last year, has greatly improved. Pete Ruane and Jerry Fromm should also supply added depth to the squad. The latter are both sophs and have displayed accurate eyes in practice.

Biggest Problem

The major question for coach Doherty is replacing graduates Charlie O'Donnell and Don Wallenhorst. But Nappy has said that "We have a young but determined team, and they are capable of replacing the seniors of last year." The coach hopes to improve on last year's 12 and 10 record and feels the present unit has steadily improved throughout the drills. If Nap is correct, Hound rooters can look forward to another exciting season.

Cross-Country man Fred Dumser.

Fred Cheney of American U led a field of forty-nine runners in the sixth annual Loyola Invitational, Saturday, with a fine 16:18 time for the 3.2 mile course. John McKee of Mt. St. Mary's was second, followed by John Murphy of Towson, Ed Orem of American U., and Bob Stephens of Towson. Fred Dumser finished first for Loyola in 18:59.

Team honors went to Towson for the second straight year. Loyola has also won twice and still holds the Invitational records for best score (31 points), most individual winners (3-Paul Sherman once and Rick Frampton twice), and best time (15:50:2) by Rick Frampton in 1961. Results:

1. Towson State	37
2. American University	56
3. Mt. St. Mary's	59
4. Gallaudet	99
5. Catholic University	100
6. Washington College	145
7. Loyola College	206

Booters Have Disappointing Season

3 - 6 - 1--not a very impressive record. But there's more to the tale than meets the eye. Any Loyola man who has ever played a varsity sport knows the particular pressures associated with athletics for the commuting student. After practice hours most Hound athletes face a long trip home. Having expended a great deal of energy in practice, they look to the necessity of home study with even less eagerness than the average bedraggled Evergreen student. These pressures do not fade away with championship hopes; for most, in fact, they only grow more intense. As NBC's "Wide World of Sports" puts it "the agony of defeat" overcomes "the exultation of victory." This fact certainly makes no happy-go-lucky affair of daily practice. In consideration of this situation, one should think once or twice before he goes too hard on our Booters.

Seven Seniors Go

As of the Western Maryland tilt last Friday, seven Loyola men, by virtue of graduation, have played their last soccer for the Green and Grey. These will be seven very deep holes in next year's squad. For six of these men, this year marks the termination of a seven year career.

Old School

Denny Grabowski, Sam Amato, Alex Schilpp, and Brian Copenhaver have been together since high school. Mike Elliott, John Campbell, and Harbs Harbold will leave many friends behind them. Let's hope some of the younger boys can do the job.

Intramurals

by Phil Pierpont

Intramural touch football suffered a wheezing, sneezing delay last week, as the Fall Monsoons inundated the football, soccer, lacrosse, and baseball fields in one fell swoop.

Clots Over Eskimos

The only game, played between two senior teams, who clashed in a 0-0 unbreakable tie last week, almost ended in another 0-0 tie, but the Clots, senior business majors, finally prevailed over the Eskimos, esoteric and scientific as they may be. The game was even closer than the teams' previous meeting; however the Clots, on the basis of first downs, were awarded the victory. Due notice must be given all-out performers like Dawson, Kelly, and Dohler, who played to the bitter end for the losers, while Walt Barczak, Legendre, and Dilworth put out great efforts--leading the Clots to their defensive victory.

Predictions

With only twelve teams left, some predictions are in order. Hamilton Rec, who finished third last season, is the over-all favorite. However, Moms, who performed well in the face of tough opposition in softball, could take it. The Animals, still undefeated, are the surprise team of the season. The Porky Pigs, solely on the basis of their past record, are still in the running. Either the Far Tars or the Wangers could be a dark horse, but this writer's money is on the Rec, with either the Moms or the Animals second.

Senior Sports Spotlight

by Emory Elliot

Co-captain of this year's basketball team, first man on last year's tennis team, Alex Cummings has been an outstanding two sport man for the past seven years.

On the hardwood, Alex has been a consistently high scorer in both high school and college. Most valuable player for three years at Loyola high, he was voted All Maryland and All Catholic, and was a member of both the News Post and Evening Sun teams. At college, he was plagued by injuries in his freshman year, and saw only limited action. But as a soph, Al progressed, scoring 18 points in his first game as a starter. Last year, his greatest moment came when he stole the ball in the closing moments against Mt. St. Mary's and assisted in the winning basket.

Tennis Veteran

On the claycourt, Alex has played a large part in the success of the tennis team for the past three years. An MSA champ in high school, he has lost only 3 of his last thirty matches.

High on the academic ratings, Alex has certainly proved himself one of Loyola's most valuable athletes and students.

Alex Cummings

Walt Barczak makes run in intramural action.
